Target 4417-9953

It is a place where lots of people can go.
This one has a lot of open spaces. Light colors.
This is a gentle place, almost a meaningless place, because it has no serious or strong emotional connection. It feels vacant and empty. It is somewhere high up in the air but it has ground underneath it.
Lots of people come here.
Surfaces feel hard and are smooth and light gray color. Stone.
We have got the open air above us, instead of a ceiling. This is a harmless place, meaning, that nobody becomes injured here. There is no aggravated assault here. It is also characterized by it being a calm place, with just the air and the wind up above us, we are up on a high elevation
even though we have got ground under our feet, or shall I say floor under our feet, the ground under us is firm and steady. It has got to do with coming up here to this place of high elevation, the air and the wind blows in a way which is distinct for being up in high elevations.

The main identifier for it being high elevation is not the thinness of the air, instead it is the way in which the wind blows which gives it away as being high elevation, more so than any indication from the thickness or thinness of the air of which I have not sensed any information yet at least.

The air is a bit cooler here, there is a big air space of open air, but it all deals with people coming to this place to be here at this high elevation, they come here to look at something which is high up like on a tower, yet the base of the tower is not a solid structure or item, it is as if something is high up there but it lacks a supporting physical structure which would physically connect its relevant/important top portion to the ground.

It is very calm here, there is no emotional excitement here, no hurry or stress or elation or panic or fear. It is a very refined and esteemed emotional characteristic of the people who come here. These people are, and they behave, in a way that is very proper, sophisticated, respectful, esteemed, they are civilized and they mind their manners. These are educated adults, they behave well. They are intelligent people as well.

This is a notably emotionally stable and calm situation and place.

It has to do with a tower, the PEAK of that tower which is high up. The base of the tower is not of importance in fact its base is almost - and perhaps due to a lack of its importance - non-existent.

9953 has something dark and solid which feels angered and serious. A masculine feeling, it could of course really be an object or a mountain. It is very solid and dense and completely black.

There is a basket that lifts things or people up.

We go high up on this target, and people disappear high up into it. The target has to do with "going away".

Completely thin air, empty.

People came here to see it. They were curious and were observing it, these were learned men educated and scientists who had come to observe this thing that goes up here.

It has to do with a PEAK.

There is a paradox, because the peak or top of this thing does not have the supporting underside which would physically connect it to the ground under it, so that is paradoxal. There is nothing there but it should be there. It is there but it is not there, that's the puzzle.

Someone was angry when people left. The black element that is dense and feels masculine and slightly sinister or angry, he got angry when the women left his area as they went to this high PEAK. He however did not go there with them.

We're dealing with a peak. The top of something, which already itself was up on a high elevation, yet the top or peak of this thing is of course even higher up.

We had to climb up to be here, we had to climb for a long time just to SEE this thing here in this place. It has to do with people coming here to SEE this thing up here.

This peak or top of the "thing" does not fall down from here. It is not going to fall over, there is no risk or worry of that ever happening.

People come here to SEE this thing. It is an expedition just to come here. But these are all scientists looking at it, they are not the average population. They are very calm and observing when they are looking at it.

It doesn't fall down or come down, really it won't.

The element ("peak") has a weird smell which smells like ice or thunder.

It is protecting people. It is a beacon. It is up in the sky.

The peak element has windows on it. It has no floor and is therefore like a mushroom head which is like a parachute shape, see drawing.

The angry man had told people to not come to this place, and he had also tried to retain them down below. But many men climbed up to this place to look at the peak item.

The windows around it make you able to look through the windows around so it is like an observatory.

It picked people up and it went around the world almost, see drawing.

The man was angry he wanted to scratch it down. The man wanted to keep it down on the ground. He was angry because he felt devastated and defeated, because he could do nothing to stop it from happening, even though he had tried.

The peak item picks people up.

The angry man wanted to punch something, he wanted to punch holes into it and to destroy it, because he himself was being kept down on the ground in the red fire hells of a lava flow.

The people brought some measuring recording instruments with them when they came up to the mountain to see the thing. They have technical equipment with them in cases that have a metal casing and a handle on the top.

This thing picks people up and it moves like an organic thing like a jellyfish.

It's a floating balloon parachute which has no bottom floor on it.

It is an observational instrument made with which to SEE from high up above.

Outside wall of it has a sticker or a paper attached to it with text on it.
