Target 67890

Today September 6, 2018

67890

I am flying, high up in the air. I feel thin like the air. It is daylight and I see thin veils of clouds. I am really high up. I am looking down. My arms are spread out to the sides like airplane wings, but my arms are not flapping like a bird flying. I feel light in my head, and dizzy, because I am really so very high up. My head leans back and my eyes close, I fall into a dream.

Something floated very high up into the air. But it was looking down from up there.

Investigation stage: what do I see when I look down? A vast landscape, I see a whole area which is divided into squares like blocks with houses and white lines in between like the streets for cars. My stomach hurts. I floated high up from there.

Investigate why arms are to the sides: It is not my arms, it is a plank that someone walked across. Someone's head got dizzy, and the head fell backward and the eyes rolled back.

Investigate plank: The plank is in fact a person. There is green bushes and rather wet plants around it, the ground feels swampy because it is very wet. Something nasty is here. This place is somewhere in the region that we saw from up above. Something smells bad here. It is notably wet on the ground, swampy and squishy from the wet plants. That is why they have placed the plank down on the ground to walk on because otherwise the ground is too wet to walk on.

Investigate the wet region with plants and the plank: It smells bad here, because something goes putrid here. It smells bad. The head fell backwards and the eyes were open and the eyes rolled back in the head.

What is the person seeing: the person is looking up into the sky, to where the rigid thing that was the plank airplane went, however, even though the person was looking up to the sky, it was the rigid plank there and the person was on the wet ground.

The person feels strange. Investigate the person because something is not correct about its description, what is off or strange about the person: the way that the head fell back, the head slowly bends backward in the direction where the back is and the eyes slowly roll back as if first looking up with the eyes then the eyes continue to roll further back. This is a notable movement and is strange and a key element.

Go back to initial element the sky: The sky tells us how to pinpoint the location, because, from up here we can see the large map region that is down below, with the grid squares and lines of streets and blocks of houses. It tells us where to find the wet swamp region where the plank and body is, it tells us from where the body is looking up and that is where the head rolled backward in that strange way.

Investigate person, who is it, what is it doing: The body was slowly turned around in this direction as follows: the head slowly turns backward as if the head first leans slowly backward toward the back but then it continues to turn slowly. The eyes look strange and are not normal, also how the eyes roll back is not normal, the eyes are wide open but do not look normal. The eyes look like blue eyes.

Investigate person: The person was happy and smiling and laughing, when I press the person's stomach the person laughs. It was a fun turn-about. The body made that roll around but it looks strange. The person has a thick warm sweater that looks like an old granpa's sweater in mostly rusty brown colored fabric and with some green thin lines, it is a woolly sweater with fibers pointing out. The person has a thick tongue which is strange. The tongue is swollen. The body has turned around and the person was looking up to the sky but is on the ground where the ground was wet.

Investigate information about the person that is not visual or current, such as background: The person thought it would be funny to be here. They were laughing here at first. The tongue is swollen. The body has been turned around so that the head is almost facing downward but the person is not fully vertically upside down but almost that way, diagonally leaning so that the head is facing diagonally downward. The tongue is really swollen. The arms are rigid and are spread to the sides. The person fell to something, slowly. And the person was at first walking over a plank.

Investigate plank: IT SMELLS HERE! Like rotten vegetation! It is a marsh, a rotten smelly swamp. It stinks here of rotting plants, and the person's arms are spread out to the sides and the fists are rigid. The tongue is all swollen and the eyes have rolled backward, but the person thought that it was fun to be here, it was a lot of fun at first.

Something was at first flying like an airplane, we are high up in the sky, and from there we are looking down at the gridlines of the housing area which pinpoints the place where we want to go. It shows us on a map. And it smells there from rotting plants in a wet marsh. It is behind a fence, because the body fell down there on the plank.

Investigate the swollen tongue: I see the eyes first, wide open blue eyes, the eyes have rolled backward, and the person can still see.

Investigate the eyes: The eyes are flying high up in the sky. The tongue is swollen and gray and the arms are rigid to the sides and the hands are fists and I see the grandpa sweater. The body is leaning diagonally backward with the head facing down.

This was a fun place to go. It was meant to be fun here. There was a lot of laughter here. It was going to be a lot of fun for this person.

I will end here even though I could get more info. I end now because I am still only learning, and since I am using a target from this person for the first time, the person can by now evaluate my report to see if there is any correlation or not, to see if I was on the right track or not, before I go too deeply into it.

-Feedback: this target dealt with a case that someone is harming cats, ripping out their spines and leaving the bodies to be seen. See feedback in the folder on the computer where this text report is found.
